Report of my Trip to Gujarat, India,
Global Bird Watwcher Conference 2010
November 24th, 2010 to December 1st, 2010
Jonathan MARTINEZ

Introduction:

In mid July 2010, I found in my email inbox an invitation from the « TOURISM CORPORATION OF GUJARAT LIMITED » to participate in the Global Birdwatcher Conference 2010 in India Jamnagar city Gujarat province. The email accompanying the invitation read as follows: « We are pleased to inform you that the Government of Gujarat will be sponsoring your Air Tickets by Economy class from your nearest International Airport to Ahmedabad / Jamnagar and back, as well as the local hospitality during your stay and a familiarization tour of Gujarat. »

«Too nice to be true», I kept telling myself, and a week passed before I decided to reply. I had very low expectations convinced that it was just another spam!
I landed Ahmedabad in the early morning of November 24th, after a first flight from Hong Kong to Mumbai (Bombay). The 3 day conference held in Jamnagar city was a good opportunity to meet birdwatchers from all over the world. Every continent was represented, with one birdwatcher flying from as far as Argentina!
Interesting presentations and conversations on the local bird populations and habitats in the conference centers were followed by actual birdwatching in the different but very attractive reserves around Jamnagar. I visited along with the other attendees Khijadiya Birds Sanctuary on 25th and 26th and Nayara Marine Reserve on 27th.

When the conference ended I took advantage of being in Gujarat and extended my trip by 3 days to 01st of December, to visit the famous Gir National Park, supporting the last wild population of Asiatic Lions. Unfortunatly my only contact with a Lion was one roaring sound coming from in front of us (the guide and me) as we were unable to locate the felid. The Jeep safari that could have given me much more chance to see those lions definitely rebuffed me: a bit too strict and too far from the feeling I am searching in birding in such a wondefull place. Walking in this dense Jungle was simply fantastic, looking into Leopard and Lion footprints, with great birds everywhere. I flew back to Mumbai from Ahmedabad on December 1st and reached HongKong International Airport on December 2nd, early in the morning. The total number of species that I encountered amounted to: 180 species

Province prospected: Gujarat

Major localities:
- Jamnagar city
- Khijadiya Birds Sanctuary : Unique wetland of about 6 sq KM, including fresh water lake, large creeks, saltponds, marshes, mangroves and scrubs.
- Nayara Marine Reserve : Coral reef, and saline wetland
- Sasan city
- Gir National Park : Jungle

Acknowledgement:

First of all, I would like to thank the « Government of Gujarat », « Tourism Corporation of Gujarat Limited « and the « Marine National Park, Forest Department of Government of Gujarat » to have invited me to these events.
Thanks to Uttej Rao of « JN Rao Travel consultancy services » for all his work on the organisation of this huge project, for his kindness and disponibility during the events, and to Utpal Rao for the great organisation of my Gir National Park trip.
I also would like to thank the « Parmar farmhouse » owner for his hospitality even I was not living in his hotel, and for accompanying me in the reserve. I highly recommend his farm house for anyone wishing to spend some time in the region.
